Dear [redacted]:

I am very much interested in the job that we discussed. If you decide you need me in the last week of September, I wonder if I could accept on condition that I might be free to consider one other possibility that might materialize during the first two weeks of July. In the remote event that this other thing developed, you would then still have more than two months to find someone else.

If this arrangement is unsatisfactory and you need a definite commitment before July, please let me know and I shall let you have a definite answer immediately.

Sincerely yours,

Cord Meyer, Jr.
